

Request to cooperate in refraining from holding events

After 19 June, event organisers are requested to limit the number of participants to 1,000 or less for both indoor and outdoor events.

Event organisers are requested to cooperate in making an effort to minimise the risk of the spread of infections as well as to consider in advance how they will contact participants (make a name list of participants or use a contact-tracing app etc.) if infections occur.

From 10 July, the restrictions on the size of events will gradually be eased.

Guidelines for the holding of events

① Phase One (1 June - 18 June)

- If the event will be held indoors, the number of participants should be 100 or less, and be less than half of the capacity for the venue.
- If the event will be held outdoors, the number of participants should be 200 or less, and participants must maintain an appropriate distance apart from each other (2 metres apart as much as possible).
- Event organisers are requested to take proper preventative measures such as restricting entry, guiding participants, preventing areas where people are waiting, etc. from becoming crowded, asking participants to sanitize their hands and wear a mask, and having proper indoor ventilation. In the case where the event involves performances, etc., sufficient space between participants should be secured and preventative measures regarding cheering and other such activities should be taken.
- Event organisers are requested to avoid having participants in close contact before and after events, or during intervals as much as possible, because of the increased risk of infection.
- For Trade fairs, exhibitions and the like, preventative measures regarding numbers of participants, etc. should be taken to ensure appropriate social distancing through the balancing of participant numbers vs venue capacity. Additionally, appropriate measures should be taken for ensuring that social distancing is maintained through entry restrictions, etc.

② Phase Two (19 June - 9 July)

- 1,000 or less for both indoor and outdoor events.
- In addition to the above condition, event organisers are requested to limit the number of participants to approximately half of capacity for indoor events.

- Secure enough space between participants for outdoor events (2 metres apart as much as possible)

③ Phase Three (10 July - 31 July)

- 5,000 or less for both indoor and outdoor events.
- In addition to the above condition, event organisers are requested to limit the number of participants to approximately half of the capacity for indoor events, and to have ensure sufficient space between participants for outdoor events (2 metres apart as much as possible).

Note: For an event where organisers and participants are clearly separated (for example: a professional sporting event where athletes are separated from spectators, etc.), only the number of participants should be counted towards the above max capacity. For an event such as a Trade fair, etc. where organisers and participants are not separated, the number of both organisers and participants should be combined when calculating overall numbers in relation to the above max capacity.

Guidelines for events without spectators

When holding events which entail movement of people around the country (such as professional sporting events, etc.), event organisers are requested to take appropriate preventative measures for the attending athletes, performers, and the like (For example: having athletes, etc., avoid attending if they have a fever or cold-like symptoms, and to prevent the “Three Cs” from overlapping in locker rooms and other places).

Event organisers can hold an event without spectators from 19 June on the premise that they ensure appropriate management of the behaviour of players, performers and spectators during transit and in the area where the event is being held in order to prevent the spread of infections. (After 10 July, follow the requirements at each stage for the number of participants, the ratio of participants to venue capacity for maintain social distancing, etc.)

Measures for the holding of festivals and other such events

Event organisers are requested to respond as follows when holding events where the number of attendees cannot be estimated such as festivals, firework displays and outdoor festivals.

- For local festivals such as Bon dance festivals which are not expected to attract people from across Japan or from over a wide area, and where the number of participants or attendees can be estimated, ensure that appropriate preventative measures are in place (For example, advising people with a fever or cold-like symptoms not to participate, avoid the “Three Cs” during the festival, advise participants and attendees to avoid exchanges before and after the festival which breach the “Thee Cs”, promote the sanitizing of hands as well as the wearing of masks.)

- For events other than those above (where the event is likely to attract people from across Japan or from over a wide area, and where the number of participants or attendees cannot be estimated), respond prudently by considering options such as cancelation.

Important points for the prevention of spread of infection

- Even for events with participants less than the restricted maximum number, event organisers should be well aware that the risk of infections depends on the form or the place of the event. For example, for events which are expected to involve shouting, singing, cheering and close-range conversations, respond more prudently regardless of the above mentioned maximum numbers and the venue capacity.
- Event organisers are requested to keep a record of the participants that attend their events including their contact information, etc., and consider employing the use of the contact tracing application which is planned to be introduced.

Event organisers should be extremely cautious when holding events which entail movement of people around the country. Participants should be aware that there is a risk of infection even if preventative measures are taken, and are advised not to participate in any events when showing symptoms of a fever, etc. (There is the possibility that asymptomatic people will infect others.)
